

ABSTRACT

A secure Internet-accessible document control system and method that facilitates the secure storage of documents on a computer system and permits selected
5 authorized users to access the stored documents through the Internet from remote locations. The document control system and method being particularly well suited for litigation management in cases where a plurality of confidentiality levels govern access to the documents.